Kai Thorsgard represents clients in a wide variety of civil litigation matters including premises liability, products liability, construction defect, employment law, agricultural law, and workers' compensation. Kai especially enjoys First Amendment issues, having represented clients in high-value defamation cases and matters arising out of government overreach and censorship.

Prior to joining Hall & Evans, Mr. Thorsgard practiced civil and criminal litigation before state, appellate, and municipal courts across Montana and North Dakota.

Before his legal career, Mr. Thorsgard learned about the indispensable nature of quality advocacy and leadership through his experiences working as a wildland firefighter with the US Forest Service and through raising a child with autism. In his free time, Mr. Thorsgard can be found spending time with his son and his black lab, as well as hiking and mountain biking in all the wild and scenic places that make Montana the last best place.
